1,000 MEMBERS GOAL OF WAYNE 4-H CAMPAIGN

Drive, Under Way For New Clubs, Leaders

Sodus—A campaign to enroll 1,000 4-H members is being set in motion in Wayne County.

James G. Case of Sodus, chairman of the Wayne County 4-H executive committee reports the goals are to enroll as many 4-H members as possible before the beginning of the new year, to enlist new leaders and to organize new clubs.

To handle this campaign, a county-wide campaign committee has been set up of leaders and council members who, in turn, have appointed captains in each township, who together with a committee of local 4-H leaders and council members will be responsible for the campaign in each township.

The 4-H leaders named to this first county-wide committee are Mrs. Henry Lockner and Alice Weiss of Sodus; Lorene Warner of Palmyra, Mr. and Mrs. Burdette Colvin of Wolcott, and Shermen Folnsbee of Red Creek, while the Council members named to the committee are John Stevans of Ontario, Dorothy Dean, Marion; Dave Sapp of Lyons, and Dorothy Strong of Newark.

The township captains for Wayne County are: Williamson, Marjorie Cook; Ontario, John Steven; Marion, Francis Dean; Walworth Mrs. George Bulterman; Wolcott, Mr. and Mrs. Burdette Colvin; Savannah, Mrs. Catherine Kent; Palmyra, Lorene Warner; Lyons, Mrs Donna Plummer; Newark, Mrs. Edward O'Meal; Clyde, Kenneth Stone; North Rose and Rose, Marian Winchell; Macedon, Mrs. Harold Breese and Sodus, Mrs. Henry Lockner.

Nearly 500 4-H members already have signed up at the county office and additional enrollments are being received every day, according to the 4-H officials here. Four new clubs have already been organized—a girls' club at Red Creek with Mrs. Warren Upton and Mrs. Clayton Nichols as leaders; a club for boys and girls at Savannah with Cecil Buettner as leader; a girls' club at Sodus with Leona Gaus and Mrs. Daniel Mills as leaders, and a club at Macedon with Mrs. Henry Breese as leader.

By organizing the campaign early, Case anticipated that it will be possible to complete the organization work early in the year, thus providing more time for program planning, leadership training and project development. Case further states that the 4-H program for 1949 provides many opportunities for boys and girls in Wayne County and it is the hope of the executive committee, Case said, that these benefits can be offered to as many Wayne County boys and girls as possible.

SCHOOLS PLAN CAREER WEEK

Penn Yan—At a special meeting of representatives of the faculty from five area held schools, held in Penn Yan, plans were made for Yates County's annual Career Week.

This project, started three years ago by William Joslyn, viceprincipal and guidance director of Penn Yan Academy and Junior High School, has proven so popular that it has spread to all the schools in the county and, this year, to two outside. Invited to take part in the planning and the program as it may be worked out are the Naples Central School and the Prattsburg Central School, both reported eager to be included.

Date for the week, which is planned to give high school pupils an opportunity to see and sometimes try their hand briefly at the jobs available in the area which the schools service, is Feb. 13 through 19.

At Penn Yan business men, store managers, and all industries have cooperated to make the week one of value to the students. It also has proved of value to the employers in giving them an introduction to potential future employees—young folks who have declared a special interest in certain types of industry or employment.

In previous years the week has also provided opportunity for talks between the young people, their parents, and industrial leaders.

Attending the session here were Rexford Morse, director of Guidance at the Dundee Central School; Roger Killian, principal of Naples Central School; George T. Farley, principal of Prattsburg Central School; Clifford Brown, principal of Middlesex Valley Central School at Rushville; Stephen Underwood, school district superintendent of Yates County; Clayton Rose, superintendent of Penn Yan Public Schools; Donald Grant, principal of Penn Yan Academy and Junior High School, and Joslyn.

Another meeting is scheduled for 7:30 p. m. next Wednesday at the Middlesex Valley School. This will be to make further plans for the week and a formal organization of the faculty members participating will be completed.

Seneca Falls K. of C. to Use Historic Sackett Mansion

Seneca Falls—One of the oldest homes in Seneca Falls, the stately stone mansion built by the late Judge Cary V. Sackett in W. Bayard St., and recently acquired by Seneca Falls Council, Knights of Columbus, will be opened formally on Sunday afternoon, Dec. 19.

Stephen J. Byrne, grand knight of the council, which has more than 250 members, announced the program will open at 3:30 p. m., when the Rev. John P. O'Beirne, pastor of St. Patrick's Church, will bless the house. This part of the program will be for council members only and will be followed by a formal opening for the public in the form of a general inspection, tea and reception. Officers of the council and their wives will make up the reception committee.

Civic officials as well as Knights of Columbus from councils in neighboring cities and villages will be invited.

Home Built in 1833

The former Sackett home, only a short distance west of St. Patrick's Church, was built in 1833 by Gary V. Sackett, a pioneer of this village.

Sackett, at the time a judge in the Court of Common Pleas and a promoter of the canal system, reared this house of stone quarried a mile or so away on his own farm. He built it shortly after he married his second wife and lived there in an atmosphere of culture until his death in 1865.

In this home, William H. Seward of Auburn, former Governor and Secretary of State under President Abraham Lincoln, found a genial and astute adviser and there also came Red Jacket, a famous Indian orator, on occasions to bewail the misfortunes of his people. Judge Sackett also knew Joseph Smith, founder of the Mormon Church, when he came to this section of Seneca County known as "The Kingdom," just west of the Sackett home, to win converts.

He had a host of correspondents which included, besides Governor Seward and President Millard Fillmore, a number of other men of the day, leaders in state and national thought and politics.

Several Recent Sales

Descendants of the Sacketts lived in the home until 1935. Since that time, it has changed hands twice before it recently became the new home of the Knights of Columbus Council.

In front of the house is a blue and gold sign which tells the observer that its original owner was a judge in the Court of Common Pleas.

The original furnishings included several pieces of furniture that came from the White House at Washington, all used during the administration of President Monroe. Large hand paintings of Judge Sackett and Mrs. Sackett also hung on the walls. These all have passed on to descendants of the family, none of whom live in this region.

The three-story house has a dozen rooms, six on the first floor, six on the second. In addition, there is a large ballroom on the third floor which eventually will be made into the council room.

Mansion Redecorated

Contractors and council members have been redecorating and making alterations to the house for several weeks. The first floor has been converted into lounge rooms, with leather furniture, and curtains that are reproductions of prints used during the American Revolution. The original fireplace remains on the first floor with cranes, and iron kettles, keeping the rooms in "motif" of early American informality. A card room is directly off the large lounge. The remainder of the first floor includes a modern kitchen, office and shower room.

The second floor is formal, painted in deep colors. The hall is in Williamsburg blue, with black tile floor, and is furnished with a large mahogany highboy, antique copper umbrella holder, and old fashioned French prints. To the right, the "red room" is in Burgundy with 1850 green furniture, used as a reading room. To the left, the "gray" room is done in a deep gray, and is used as a reception room, with old fashioned furniture.

Pictures in Gilt Frames

Through the hall, the "green room," temporarily used as a council room, runs the width of the house, painted in deep green, with white woodwork, white fireplace, and enormous crystal chandeliers, and has several pieces of antique furniture, and pictures in gilt frames. In the rear, there is a women's powder room and another smaller office. A large oval leaded window is located about the majestic portal. Around the old house a few oaks and maples still stand.

"It is the hope of the council to maintain the house as a showplace—an interesting part of local history and tradition," Grand Knight Byrne said. To that end, he said, the members constantly are seeking furniture, furnishings, and relics of the period. "While the house is ready for occupancy," the grand knight said, "it probably will take years to furnish it completely in the period in which it was built."

Plans are being made by the council to have a program of dances and dinners. The first affair, a dance, is being planned for Christmas week.

YATES COUNTY AWAITS SANTA

Penn Yan—Santa Claus is coming to town Thursday afternoon of this week and every afternoon thereafter until the day of his "official visitation." He is expected to arrive from the Penn Airport around 3 p. m. and will spend about two hours around the business section visiting with children, young and old.

The object of his early arrival, arranged by a group of Penn Yan merchants and organizations, is to give all the children a chance to meet Good Old St. Nick personally and to hand him in person their letter telling what they hope he will be able to bring them for Christmas.

Santa doesn't guarantee that he can bring to every boy and girl all that is requested. But he has sent word that if the writer makes certain that his name and address—complete mail address—is clearly written on each "Dear Santa" note, he will see that the authors of some of the best of them receive a very valuable pre-Christmas prize. It will be a gift certificate, worth real money in trade at any Penn Yan store and backed by the Chamber of Commerce.

To add to the fun he promises to read some of the better letters over the loudspeaker which is hung in the Christmas decorations over the four corners. At other times Christmas music will be played through the PA system.

Strings of colored lights, punctuated with Christmas pendant transparencies, arch the main streets of the village, while alternating red and green globes cap the boulevard lights on Main St. In addition to all this, most of the store owners have cooperated by providing a silvered Christmas tree at the curb, providing a festive appearance that accentuates the usual holiday displays in store windows.

In addition to Santa's pre-Christmas visits afternoons from about 3:30 to 5 and on Saturday of this week from 2 to 4 and 7 to 8 p. m., the Penn Yan adults are arranging for a big Christmas party for all children of the vicinity from 1 to 13 in the Elmwood Theater from 9 a. m. Thursday, Dec. 23, on.

A program of cartoon movies will be the chief feature. Santa has promised to be there, too. Johnson-Costello Post of the American Legion will provide gifts and candy for all the kiddies who attend. These will be given as they leave the Elmwood Theater.

The Penn Yan merchants and those cooperating with them, including the American Legion, invite the children from all Yates County. The invitation, they stress, is by no means limited to Penn Yan neighborhood alone. Santa Claus has ordered a new suit to wear on this occasion and he hopes the Elmwood Theater will be packed with happy children to admire his new "work" clothes.

Firemen Defer Naming of New Chief in Lyons

Lyons—Naming of a chief of the Lyons Fire Department to fill the vacancy created by the recent death of George C. Ahrans, has been deferred until the annual department meeting on Apr. 7. Delegates from each of the seven companies will make the choice then.

The Fire Council at its meeting Dec. 20 will choose a chairman of the local committee which will be in charge of the arrangements for the convention of the Northern Central New York Volunteer Firemen's Association in Lyons next summer. Chief Ahrans was chairman when he died. Two days in June will be selected, the first for the annual business meeting, the second for the parade and sports program.

The parade and field day of the Wayne County Firemen's Association will be July 28 at Wolcott.

Our thoughts are ever of you
Because of the happiness we all knew
During the many, many days together,
When you were a loving wife and mother.
