TV Show On Ernie Kovacs Scheduled by ABC

BY MOLL BROWN

HOLLYWOOD- Ernie Kovacs was all set to open school and a loan in one of Arthur Godfrey's talent shows when he was told that ABC Kovacs' show would be scaled down to a half hour. "That was in 1951, and I'd been a four-day a week show," says Kovacs of the event. "I thought, 'Oh no, no, no.'"

Ernie Kovacs died of a heart attack in February 1962 at the age of 46. He was a star of television's golden age, known for his innovative sense of humor and his ability to make audiences laugh. His show was known for its innovative format and his ability to push the boundaries of what was considered acceptable on television.

Ernie was a pioneer of television comedy, and his influence can still be seen today. He was known for his quick wit and his ability to make the audience laugh, and his show was a hit with audiences of all ages. Kovacs was a true television pioneer, and his legacy lives on to this day.

By the time Kovacs died, his show had been on the air for nearly a decade, and it had become a favorite of viewers across the country. His show was known for its innovative format and its ability to push the boundaries of what was considered acceptable on television.
